ADVERTISING

ONE CENT A WORD.

On January 1, 1893, the rate for CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING in THE TIMES was changed from 10 cents per line per week to 1 cent per line per week for each insertion. (No insertion for less than 15 cents.)

The change was made chiefly for convenience in calculation. Notwithstanding the fact that the bona fide circulation of THE TIMES has, within less than two years and a half, nearly doubled, the price of single insertion 2-line notices (12 words) has been reduced from 25 cents to 10 cents each, and advertisers now pay nothing for the ordinary blanks at the end. On this plan, calculation by the advertiser himself is simple and easy, enabling him to send the exact amount of money necessary to secure the insertion of his advertisement for one, two, or any number of times. Postage stamps accepted by mail. Exact change given at the counter. Advertisements not accompanied by the full amount necessary to secure their insertion will be delayed or returned to the sender.

THE COURTS.

Judge Shaw Sustained by His Conferees.

His Decision in the Hreclach Contempt Case Affirmed.

The Defendant Allowed to Apologize and Then Discharged.

Supreme Court Opinions Received for Filing—Mrs. Tischhauser Before Judge Shaw on Habeas Corpus Proceedings—Court Notes.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning M. Hreclach, the Slav restaurateur who was recently adjudged by Judge Shaw to be in contempt of court, and sent to jail for five days in addition to being fined in the sum of $100, appeared with his counsel, Messrs. Appel and Kinley, in Department Five to learn the decision arrived at by Judges Clark, Van Dyke and Shaw, to whom he applied for his release through the medium of his attorney, claiming that Judge Shaw had exceeded his jurisdiction; when a lengthy opinion was read sustaining Judge Shaw's position, and the petition was denied in accordance therewith.

Judge Shaw subsequently, however, allowed the defendant to apologize for his conduct, and magnanimously commuted his sentence and ordered him discharged.

SUPREME COURT OPINIONS.
An opinion was received from the Supreme Court yesterday by Deputy Clerk Ashmore for filing in this city in the cases of the estate of Christian P. Haas, deceased, reversing the judgment of the lower court and remanding the cause for a new trial. Another opinion was also received, that in the case of Henry W. King et al. (respondent) vs. J. T. Sheward (appellant). The plaintiffs are a building-house in Chicago, and the action is for a balance due on a claim for goods sold and delivered to the defendant, the main item of difference arising from a loss on the return of some of the goods.

The Supreme Court simply takes the opinion rendered by Judge Van Dyke and published in This Times on January 12 last, and affirms the judgment and order, for the reasons stated therein.

Court Notes.
Judge Smith yesterday morning denied the motion of defendant's counsel in the Charles Peterson case for judgment of acquittal on the verdict returned by the jury on December 30 last.

Upon motion of the District Attorney, Judge Smith yesterday morning modified the judgment of Justice Owens in the case of the People vs. Villalobos, convicted of carrying concealed weapons, remitting the fine from $20 to $10, but otherwise affirmed it.

The demurrer interposed to the indictment found against Albert Slack, charging him with having embezzled a cow, was sustained by Judge Smith yesterday morning upon the ground that the defendant never had possession of the animal, and, upon motion of the District Attorney, Slack was discharged.

Upon motion of counsel Judge Smith yesterday allowed the appellants in the cases against Ah Fawn et al., six days' additional time within which to file briefs, respondent being allowed two days to reply.

J. N. Darnon withdrew from the case against R. Frank Warner, charged with having placed an obstruction on the track of the Southern California Railway Company, yesterday morning, and Judge Smith thereupon appointed Calvin Edgerton, Esq., as counsel for defendant in his stead.

Mrs. Sirah French was granted a decree by Judge Clark yesterday morning divorcing her from Arthur A. French, upon the ground of desertion, by default.

The defendants in the case of W. Le Moyné Wills et al., extra., etc., vs. Mrs. A. G. Adams et al., an action to foreclose a mortgage for $2509.45 on part of the Arcadia tract, having allowed the matter to go by default, Judge Van Dyke yesterday ordered a decree against them, as prayed for.

The plaintiffs in the case of the Porter Land and Water Company vs. Mrs. L. E. Hensler et al., an action to foreclose a mortgage on a tract of land at San Fernando for $2620.98, were granted a decree as prayed for by Judge Van Dyke yesterday, by default.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tischhauser appeared before Judge Shaw yesterday afternoon upon a writ of habeas corpus and demanded her release from the custody of the Sheriff upon the ground that the commitment issued by Justice Bartholomew requiring her to give bonds in the sum of $500 to keep the peace, was illegal, in that it did not state how long she was to be detained, but her petition was denied and she was remanded.

In Department Six yesterday morning Judge McKinley tried three foreclosure suits brought by John Weber, as administrator of Harriet Shas, deceased, and ordered a decree as prayed for, by default, in each instance. The defendants were C. B. Wilson, $719.31, Emma R. Doan et al., $1258.76 and A. H. Sanborn et al., $609.44.

The special verdict returned by the jury in the case of H. Scheibler vs. H. Behnisen et al., being inconsistent with the general verdict therein, Judge McKinley yesterday morning ordered that judgment be entered for plaintiff in the sum of $48.57, less $212.22, with interest at the rate of 10 per cent. from July 12 last.

Only one new suit was filed with the County Clerk yesterday, that of George F. Chevalier vs. F. R. Ellis & Co., an action to recover a balance of $381.50 alleged to be due on account of goods sold and delivered.

THE SUPERVISORS.

Streets in the Childs Tract Vacated—Saloon Licenses Granted.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, petitions for the vacation of streets in the Childs tract near Glendale were granted, the county reserving the right to occupy said roads, etc., when the same may be necessary in the judgment of the board, without cost.

The applications of M. Lawrence of Arcadia, A. Bloeser of Avalon, and M. H. Crain of El Monte for saloon licenses were granted upon the usual conditions.

A petition was received from I. H. Billings et al., asking for the vacation of Lone Hill and Llanita avenues in the San José road district, and the matter was set for hearing on February 2 next.

A number of warrants, amounting in the aggregate to $147.40, were cancelled at the instance of the County Auditor.

Having a Good Time
Is a delightful human experience. Seventy-five thousand people annually have a "good time" at Coronado Beach. The reasons are legion.

Last summer we placed an order with a large Eastern manufacturer of Fine Shoes for 1200 pair of Men's High-grade Patent Leather Shoes, the same to be delivered December 1. In time for our Holiday trade, but owing to a strike the goods were delayed and just arrived. We wired the makers that "we could not use them," and their reply came, "As goods are stamped 'Jacoby Bros.' and we cannot sell them to any one else, slaughter them and charge the loss to us," and Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock we will throw them away at

As they are regular $6.00 and $7.00 Shoes, and cost $4.50 to manufacture, you can imagine how long they'll last at this price, so if you come around the last of the week and find 'em all sold, don't blame us.

Mothers!

If you think that we have overlooked the boys in this week's great Bargain Banquet you are mistaken—540 Boys' regular $5 suits have been cut down to

$2.95

And 400 dozen, 60c and 50c.

Children's Shirt Waists have been reduced to 25c. Ladies, this week will be one long to be remembered in the minds of all economical people who believe in the old proverb that a "Penny saved is better than 10 pence earned."

THE SENATOR-ELECT

Preparations for the Reception of Mr. White.

Meeting of the Committee of Arrangements, Yesterday.

Ex-Mayor Hazard Selected as President of the Evening.

Committees Appointed by the Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade—Special Train Provided for the Reception Committee.

The reception to be tendered to Hon. Stephen M. White, in accordance with the desire of Mr. White, will be entirely of a non-partisan character. The Committee on Arrangements met yesterday and decided on Turnverein Hall as the place for holding the reception, and decided to invite Ex-Mayor Hazard to act as president of the evening. The date is to be left open until Mr. White's return. The general committee, before adjourning, appointed the following committee on the reception:

Eugene Germain, John E. Plater, J. de Barth Shorb, E. E. Hewitt, Judge A. H. Stevens, Thomas B. Brown, Judge T. L. Winder, J. R. Toberman, W. H. Perry, N. A. Covarrubias, W. C. A telegram has been sent to Mr. White asking him if next Wednesday will be a convenient date for the reception, but up to last night no answer had been received.

Eugene Germain has arranged with the Southern Pacific Company for a special train to take the Reception Committee to meet Mr. White.

WORLD'S FAIR.

Meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the World's Fair Commission met yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce Hall at 10 a. m. There were present Mrs. Olive C. Cole, lady commissioner; Mrs. Eastman, president of the Auxiliary; Mrs. Hubbard, secretary; Mrs. Mary E. Hart, in charge of the historical department; Miss Casey of the Art Committee; Miss Fish of the Industrial Committee; Mrs. McComas of the Literature Committee; Mrs. Lansing of the silkworm exhibit, and a number of others.

The chairman of the various committees presented their bills of expenses for collection, to be forwarded at once to the proper authorities. The very lowest estimate has been made, and it is to be hoped that no difficulty or delay may be experienced in the granting of funds sufficient to meet the necessary demands. The work is well under way and an exhibit is assured that will redound to the credit of Southern California.

Meeting next Saturday, same place and same hour.

Mrs. Frimont was appointed an honorary member of the Historical Committee, and Mrs. C. M. Severance of the Committee on Literature.

Mrs. Cole has received a letter from Mrs. Julia B. Shattuck, secretary of the Woman's Dormitory Association, which says:

"We will be glad to sell Dormitory stock to the women of California, feeling that those coming from so far should have the benefit of our low rates if any preference be shown. Of course, first comers must be first served. The partitions will be of wood, unpainted, reaching the ceiling, transoms over the doors, rooms 7x9 and 14x9, each equipped with 36-inch cot, woven wire spring, wool mattress and one pillow—two cots in double room, and some rooms en suite. The furnishing will be primitive, so to speak, but new and clean, and we hope to be the means of enabling women to come to the great exposition who otherwise would not make the venture. We cannot now book any more for June."

A Bad Fall.
J. A. Scott, a conductor on the Vernon division of the electric line, was badly injured by a fall early yesterday morning. He lives with his family in the second story of the lodging-house at Third and Alameda streets. As usual he started out to work before daylight, and, in hurrying through the unlighted hall carrying a bundle of canvas curtains, he ran against the stair railing and fell over it, head first, eight or ten feet to the landing. He struck with terrible force on his face, hands and arms, all of which were shockingly cut and bruised. At first it was thought he was killed, but he soon rallied and was able to talk. It is thought no bones are broken, and he will probably be able to be out again in a few days.

Dr. L. E. Ford, Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

I am glad of the change in public sentiment that makes it possible for woman to obtain a more liberal education and a broader and richer insight into the higher needs of life. In other words, that her environment has become such, in this latter part of the nineteenth century, that she may be educated along all lines of thought, and become familiar with the many problems, not only social, but political and educational, that the world has to solve.

I met an old-fashioned woman the other day, of perhaps seventy-five years—a woman of wealth, who enjoyed the best advantages that were offered to woman fifty years ago, who was deploring that the "good old days" of her girlhood had vanished. "Dear me!" she exclaimed, "women are everywhere now. In the stores, the postoffice, as hells, girls at the telephone, catching all that comes over the wires, where they receive the messages sent; studying law, medicine, and everything on which a book has ever been written, and if this state of things continues, Susan, what is going to become of the home?"

"My dear madam," said I, "who gave to woman the faculties that she possesses, with the capability for improvement?"

"Why, our Heavenly Father, of course, my dear."

"Well, do you suppose that our Heavenly Father has given us any talents that he did not wish us to make use of? Is a woman educated in the direction which her tastes lead her, and in the way for which her talents best fit her, any less womanly than if she had let those same talents lie idle and unimproved? Has God made a mistake in giving these powers to her, or does she make a mistake in cultivating them to the best of her ability?"

"What a shocking way to put the question, Susan. Now tell me, truly, do you not think that the best place for woman is a happy home, with husband and children to care for, and would you have her leaving her home duties to practice law or medicine, or any of the new-fangled things that she has taken hold of in these degenerate days?"

"Certainly I would not have her neglect these home duties," I replied, "but you are aware that it is not every woman who has a home or children to care for. There are many women who must be self-supporting, and I am glad that they may avail themselves of opportunities in other directions, and are not compelled, as in other days, to go out as domestics, or find employment in factories, as the only way in which they can earn a livelihood. There were great many talents hidden in a napkin in those old times, half a century ago, and hundreds of women dawdled through life with nothing to employ their energies or arouse their ambition. Hundreds of girls then married just for a home, who, if they had been offered some congenial employment, would have accomplished much more for the world than in the life which they felt compelled to choose for the sake of independence. Marriage which is based merely upon the desire of securing a home is not always sure to be happy. But take from the young woman this fear of dependent servitude, and make her self-supporting, make her an educated lawyer, or doctor, a reporter, or a typewriter; give her a place where she would not lose caste socially, as she would as a domestic, and you will find her ready to wait until the man after her own heart comes along, and when she does marry you will find her none the less fitted by her experience and the self-reliance that she has learned, to make home happy, to be an intelligent companion for her husband and a loving and faithful mother to her children. These broader life experiences never injure the true woman, and her education in these different directions never make her the less womanly or refined."

"Well," was the response, "I suppose that the world has needs that it did not have when the young woman was a child. Some women doctors who are among the noblest women of our acquaintance. Perhaps you are right about these things, and I have held to my old-fashioned notions while the world has been progressing all about me. I know a good many educated women—college learned and university bred, and I think that I shall have to confess that they are bright, and progressive, and womanly, and would make as good wives as could be found anywhere."

"And that is true as far as my experience goes. The opinionated, the obstinate and the unreasonable woman, rarely the educated and cultured woman. The broader our intelligence the more charity we are apt to have for others. We look upon life as it is, unblinded by prejudice and by ignorance. We understand better the great opportunities which life offers, and are anxious to solve them. Life becomes, with the development of our faculties, something more than mere existence, or the mad pursuit of pleasure. It is something real, earnest, progressive, weighted with responsibilities and opportunities, and grand with its possibilities. The woman who resists this is not apt to throw her life away, or be negligent of her duties. She will not fall in her love of home, or in the training of her children, for she will be satisfied with nothing else than a life that is well-rounded, complete and harmonious. The present is the golden age for woman—the age of opportunity. Let us be glad in it."

sugar (granulated), the juice of half a large lemon, or that of a small one, the grated rind of a lemon. Beat the whites of the eggs until they are stiff and dry, then add the sugar, beating well; then add the well-beaten yolks; then the rind and juice of the lemon; then stir in, very lightly, the sifted flour. Bake in a moderate oven.

Graham Pudding.—Two and one-half cups of graham flour, one-half cup of water or milk, one cup of molasses, one egg, a little salt, one heaping teaspoonful of soda. Steam two hours. Eat with a sauce.

Corn's White Cake.—One and a half cups of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of sweet milk, two cups of flour, whites of five eggs, two teaspoonfuls baking powder.

Black Cake.—One cup of sugar, one cup of butter, one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of buttermilk, or sour milk, one cup of raisins or English currants; all kinds of spices to taste; two eggs, one teaspoonful soda; flour enough to make it stiff like cake.

Graham Cake.—One cup of graham flour, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of sugar, two-thirds cup of buttermilk, one egg well beaten, scant teaspoonful of soda; beat well; grease tins and have them hot when you add the batter. Bake in a quick oven.

Sandwich Cake.—Two cups of sugar, three-fourths cup of butter, one cup of sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls cream tartar, one teaspoonful soda, two and a half cups of flour, whites of five eggs. Take out four tablespoonfuls of the mixture, add one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of flour, one-half cup of raisins; citron and figs and spices to taste. Bake in square tins. One layer of the dark, two of the light, put together like jelly cake.

regular folds, such as an amateur could easily compass. It was trimmed with several mink tails, two of them wired and standing upright, and a Rhine-stone buckle. The muff was in two soft puffs running round, with a double ruffle at the ends, and the seams covered with mink tails. The box also had mink tails in the seam. I have seen a decolete gown at the opera of black, with the exception of a wide folded belt of light gray. By a folded belt I mean one which the cloth, usually bias, is drawn round in irregular plaits or gathers, and is fitted to the figure.

A MODISH STREET GOWN.

Horizontal skirt trimmings mount higher and higher. To remodel an old sheath skirt of last season, to give it the appearance of width now required, the easiest resort is several ruffles. One of our pictures shows a very modish gown of dark tan cloth trimmed with many rows of brown velvet. The same model I have seen carried out in dark green serge, with bands of black silk piping. This type of cape can be made longer and a supplementary shoulder cape added that is some ten inches wide and is plaited. It also should have the bands. If these platings make the dress fringe out stiffly, it is not an objection, as this effect characterizes the style.

ACCORDION PLAITS.

They still grace the form of beauty, these fine platings, which for dress decorations are as old as ancient Egypt, but whose count is not yet run, nor been interrupted, for it is likely to be. I saw in a trousseau the other day a set of underwear of pale tinted mousseline de soie all crimped into the finest folds and lying in such narrow compass it could have been passed through a wedding ring. It looked like the clinging garment that wrinkles over the limbs of the Niobe. Than these tiny folds when used with discretion there is no simpler or more beautiful decoration. They are employed in a very exquisite evening gown of recent make. The skirt of pale grayish-blue crepon is accented by a wide band of the same material, which is slightly gathered. The yoke is covered with a Marie Antoinette schu of white muslin beautifully elaborated with insects and a border of rich Venetian lace. The sleeves are a double puff of the muslin slashed with the lace and having a lace ruffle. Depending from the shoulders and hanging low under the arms are long sleeves of lace. The skirt has several rows of ribbon of the same tint as the crepon above the hem. A delicious confection. Nothing more elegant has been made this season, and it is so well designed that it is a good model for a less costly dress. Without the lace and by making the sleeves long and the neck high, nothing could be better designed for a young girl's party dress.

I have seen an evening gown of the Marchioness of Stafford that has accordion plaits of mousseline de soie for a neck garniture. The neck is cut out in a heart-shaped curve and there is a double frill, the under one reaching nearly to the elbows, entirely covering the short sleeve, and frilling out toward its edge, to give that triangular effect which the Louis Philippe revival has made fashionable.

A HOUSE BODICE.

A charming blouse can be made by plaiting in these fine crimps either nun's veiling, crepon or silk, onto a deep yoke as shown in our picture. The sleeves are plaited, divided into two puffs, and a ruffle of the same material is sewed underneath. Or this bodice will be effective carved out in a medium tint of light blue, not pale blue, but a vivid, purplish, light blue, nun's veiling, with the yoke embroidered in Russian cross stitch with red and black. To make such a blouse there should be a yoke lining, and for cold weather this band, or if you fold ribbon or velvet round for a band, fasten the band at the back and make a ruffle at one end, to stand out like a comb, and see if you do not find yourself bewitching.

SKATING DRESS.

A skating dress should set close to the figure, so as to offer the least possible resistance to rapid movement; should be warm and decorative. Our drawing answers very well these requirements. It shows a fashionable costume for this sport, made of dark red cloth trimmed with black velvet and black astrakhan. The jacket is of astrakhan, and the sleeves are velvet, drawn down into cuffs, warm cuffs of the fur. The pretty little bonnet with its velvet wings is quite in sympathy with the occasion.

LARGE CLOAKS.

It is no real one for neglecting storm weather dresses, but it is a woman of fashion do not go out in storms and do not provide for them in their wardrobes. Such women would, I fancy, if they could realize that there is an exhilaration in braving rough weather well calculated to relieve ennui. It would be hard perhaps to persuade many women who have tried it that there is a pleasurable sensation in walking in the rain. But then these women have not gone out properly dressed, and have had to worry about their clothes. One would hardly enjoy a warm perfume bath if they got into the tub in their best evening gown. I personally prefer a setting to encasing myself in cauchous. A rubber covering somehow offends my taste. Moreover, owing I suppose to the fact that fashionable women have no use for them, they have been cut into very ugly forms, the great designers having neglected them. There is an improvement, however, and the newest design I have seen is a very good one. The loose back is laid in six side plaits turning inward, and the front in one plait on each side, under which the openings for hands are concealed. This looks very well, but a more practicable design would seem to be one modelled somewhat after a man's waterproof cloak; that is to say, a short cloak or the stationary one, which brings with it noxious emanations from the sewer and all sorts of hidden dangers. The basin differs from those in ordinary use only in being rounded on one side only and in resting flat against the stand at the back, but the cover is entirely new. It is swung on a pivot in the center, is peculiar in shape, and when not in use stands perpendicularly above the basin. But at a touch it will turn and fill the latter with any of the effort required to raise a pitcher filled with water. Both it and the basin are shown in a variety of wares, and once the innovation becomes well known it is certain to find recognition and to become as popular as it deserves to be. Two improvements from Denmark are among the very best additions to our ceramic supply; and, though widely different, are both delightful in color and in decoration. The Royal Copenhagen china well deserves its name, if only for its glorious blue tone, and is quite unlike anything else the market knows. It is singularly broad and free in its treatment, and makes a most striking ensemble, but the reason of its exorbitant price is beyond the pen of any but the initiated few. The Copenhagen terra cotta, on the other hand, while it is equally good in its way, comes to us at a price that puts it within comparative easy reach. But its form and its decorations are copied from Turkish and Egyptian models, and nothing better need be desired. If its way it is perfect, and notwithstanding the appalling cost asked for even a small piece of its sister product, need take rank second to none.

cape, to which should be added a skirt of the waterproof, which could be worn without another dress skirt under it, or over another skirt, the two fitting together can be easily lifted together. The cloak should have a capuchin hood.

THE CAPUCHIN.

The capuchin hood, which is the only cloak hood with any power of service in it, ought to be on all storm cloaks, and on a woman's garment it should be large and generous, so that it can be drawn up over a hat or bonnet. It is made in two pieces, which it is the fashion in Paris to cut very pointed. Several short gores, where it is sewed on at the neck, make it set out from the head with sufficient width. Such hoods are very much seen in Paris on the masculine part of the community. Not only the frequent passing priest reminds us of the origin of their name, but they are on the little cloaks worn by policemen, omnibus conductors, and other men whose duties lie out of doors. Also the popular school cloak for boys of from ten to fifteen is a half long cape of dark blue cloth with one of these hoods, which is drawn up over the cap on a cold day. The capuchin can be seen in our picture of a storm cloak. This cloak is made up of one of the heavy Scotch cloakings, woven with a tartan on the under side.

NOVELTIES OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Special Correspondence of The Times.

New York, Jan. 16.—The very latest decree of fashion orders that the silver toilet articles be banished; that even the later untinted ivory be hidden from sight, and that the wonderfully beautiful shaded ivory be given the place of honor. Brushes of all sorts, hand mirrors, psychic glasses, manicure sets and all the accessories of a well-appointed dressing table are made with exquisitely carved handles and backs and are offered in tempting array. The ivory is colored to imitate, as closely as possible, the natural tints and shows every tint, from soft rich cream to a splendid warm reddish brown. The objects are all beautiful, and cannot fail to excite admiration and longing. But since they are found only at the most select shops, and are costly in the extreme, their possession can never become a popular fad. Like all real works of art, they can be only looked at by the unfortunate owners of limited incomes, and can be purchased by the lucky few alone.

Special Correspondence of The Times.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The Countess Marchetta d'Allegie (Blanchette Roosevelt), who is known even better in England and France than in her native America, is one of the women who make American women a synonym for all that is beautiful and capable. She is the daughter of William Henry Tucker of Virginia, of that famous and clever family of which John Randolph Tucker is the present prominent representative. Her mother was of the old Knickerbocker family of Roosevelt. Before the war the Tuckers lived the ideal great plantation life of the South, and it was here that Blanchette was born. After the war Mr. Tucker went to La Crosse, Wis., and seeing the future of Chicago invested his fortune there. Mr. Tucker died and the fire came and swept it entirely away. A young girl only 17 years of age, Blanchette went to one of the philanthropic men in Chicago and told him that she had a voice and that her teachers had told her that with cultivation she could earn her living upon the stage. He sent her abroad with her mother. She almost at once met Victor Hugo, who was fascinated by the beautiful young American, whom he called Aurora, and at his house she met all the distinguished men of letters in Paris.

The gloriously beautiful Rockwood pottery, of which Cincinnati may justly be proud, has been given an additional value by the device of one of our leading silversmiths. Vases, jugs, lamps and all the objects made of the artistic faience are given an outer finish of engraved and well-cut silver, and are so made not only of greater monetary value, but unique as well. The metal is applied after some fashion known to the silversmith's art and extends over a portion only of the jug or vase. It gives both brilliancy and a peculiar embossed effect that it is difficult to describe. But the union of the rich, deep tones of the pottery with the shimmer of the silver in both chaste and elegant, and is declared by experts a pronounced success.

She was visiting Longfellow at the time, and the realization began to come to her that her voice would fail. "Give up singing," he said to her, "and you will make a more lasting fame with your pen. But if you must sing, I will write a dramatic lyric for you."

"The Masque of Pandora" Cellier set to music and Miss Roosevelt sang it so entirely to Longfellow's conception that he christened her "Pandora."

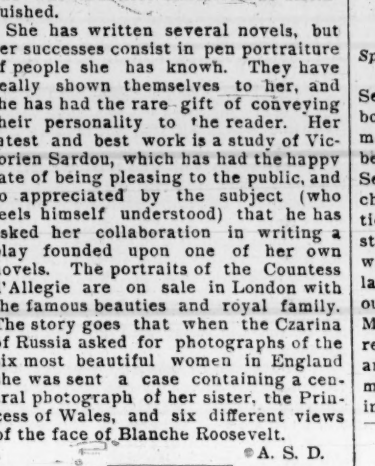

Her first book was "Longfellow at Home," which was an immense success. Later she wrote a life of Gustave Doré and the Académie Française gave her the order of the Academy of France. She was the first American so distinguished.

She has written several novels, but her successes consist in pen portraits of people she has known. They have really shown themselves to her, and she has had the rare gift of conveying their personality to the reader. Her latest and best work is a study of Victorien Sardou, which has had the happy fate of being pleasing to the public, and so appreciated by the subject (who feels himself understood) that he has asked her collaboration in writing a play founded upon one of her own novels. The portraits of the Countess d'Allegie are on sale in London with the famous beauties and royal family. The story goes that when the Czarina of Russia asked for photographs of the six most beautiful women in England she was shown a case containing a central photograph of her sister, the Princess of Wales, and six different views of the face of Blanchette Roosevelt.

The Whittier Problem—It Must Be Worked Out.

The fundamental idea embodied in the Whittier State Reform School is a good one. The plan of gathering up the younger waifs and strays of a State institution—not penal, but reformatory in its character—where their physical wants are provided for; where they will be in a wholesome moral atmosphere, and where they may not only acquire some mental training, but be taught useful trades and callings to fit them for the duties of life—cannot be too highly commended. It is a philanthropic idea; it is practical; it is a good business proposition on the part of society. The only wonder is that such an institution was not established in California years ago, and that the present school has not its counterpart in every State in the Union.

But the fact is that the Whittier school is an experiment—not an experiment for our own commonwealth particularly, but for American civilization. We are groping our way into a new field when we bring in the State as an accessory to the maintenance and training of refractory children.

It is a thousand pities that so important an experiment as the founding of the Whittier School, at its inception, should have fallen into hands not all of which have been good. The Times has never uttered a word in derogation of the purposes of this institution, but it has been obliged to say many uncomplimentary things about the manner of its establishment and equipment. We do not care to recall a single word of criticism hitherto offered, because that criticism, we are satisfied, was just, and it was the greatest service we could have rendered to the cause which the Whittier School represents.

While the purposes of the institution, as publicly proclaimed, were noble and beneficent, the project was evolved in extravagance, if not in corruption, and was made to serve ulterior motives of the most selfish and dishonorable character.

There was a job in the passage of the bill through the Legislature. A representative of this country was promised money to secure its adoption, and that money was subsequently paid him. The original trustees were appointed by the corrupt private secretary of an incompetent Governor in furtherance of this job.

There was a "deal" in the purchase of the site at Whittier. The location, though a good one in itself, was chosen mainly to subserve private ends. The purchase price of the land was swelled, in order to pay dishonest commissions to one or more of the trustees.

The water supply accompanying the land was inadequate, and the title thereto was not fully established. This we declared at the time, but the objection was overruled by the trustees, and a hypnotized grand jury, with loud protestations. Now the correctness of our criticism is acknowledged in a requisition made upon the State for $5000, with which to purchase a new water supply.

The buildings at Whittier were planned in a faulty and inadequate manner, and there was the grossest extravagance in their construction. If the truth were told, it would be found that the brickwork is defective, and the walls weak. Too much of the appropriation was lavished on mere show, and not enough to provide accommodations for the boys and girls for whom the institution was designed. The "State dining-room" and the "guest rooms" were unwarranted luxuries, and the expensive and elegant furnishing and equipment of these and the apartments of the superintendent were a shameless extravagance.

Then there was that notorious side-board and its bottled appearances, the history of which has gone into the off-color literature of the county and State. Thousands of dollars spent in this way and in other preliminaries—such as a junketing trip for the superintendent, architect and attorney through the East, and in a prospecting tour of the trustees—should have gone into the construction of plain and comfortable quarters for boys and girls.

From the very beginning, the Whittier project was employed as a means of furthering the personal fortunes and ambitions of those who had been entrusted with its management. Hervey Lindley, the president of the board, and the leading spirit in the project, looked upon it, not merely as a "fat take" in a material sense, but he proposed to make enough capital out of his connection with it to secure for himself a seat in Congress. It is well known that, for two years previous to securing the nomination, he was laying his pipes to that end, and at one time he professed to believe that he could make a winning campaign on his Whittier School record alone! His lamentable failure is known to the world. After suffering defeat in his political aspirations, he resigned his trusteeship of the school. That position could no longer serve his purposes.

Such is the lamentable record of the founding of one of the most philanthropic and most beneficent institutions ever projected by this or any other commonwealth. What a misfortune that the tribute which should have been rendered to God was turned over to Caesar! What an outrage perpetrated in the name of humanity!

But even with this wreck of good intentions, this perversion of benevolent objects, there was a remnant of good which remained. Buildings were erected; the school was founded. There is an institution remaining after the squanders have had their day. The school has now passed under a practically new management in its board of trustees. It is time to look about, take stock of what we have, and decide upon ways and means for the future. The good and generous idea of a juvenile reform school still remains, and gratifying progress has been made toward establishing a system of discipline, regimen and instruction. There are still many crudities and many discrepancies which need to be remedied. The general policy of the institution toward the unfortunate who are its wards is broad, humane and judicious. The superintendent, Dr. Walter Lindley, is here freely accorded all the credit which belongs to him for good intentions and zealous labors performed; but to withhold honest criticism of his administration would not be just to the wards of the State or beneficial to himself. The details in carrying out the policy of the school are still subject to many amendments.

That the establishment of the Whittier School supplied a long deferred and pressing requirement of society was attested by the prompt way in which the institution was filled. It was but a little time after the opening until the girls were crowded out of the State quarters altogether, and for them temporary accommodations were secured in a rented building—a ramshackle "boom" hotel, deserted by the guests that once thronged its halls. The boys not only occupied the quarters originally designed for both sexes, but overran them. A recent report of the trustees to the Governor says:

"We have children sleeping in the power-house and on the doors of the dormitories, and over one hundred of them are obliged to take their meals in the halls. In fact, we are resorting to every means to provide places for these boys and girls who have been committed to the care of the State."

The present buildings have capacity, it is admitted, for only 300 inmates; but for several months 400 have been accommodated. And there are now, in various parts of the State, fifty boys, committed to the Reform School by the courts, whom the institution is unable to receive for lack of room. There is no doubt that the school is badly overcrowded, and its efficiency is crippled thereby. This leads to an inquiry as to whether the methods by which the school has been more than filled in so short a time are not at fault. It is manifest that commitments have been secured too easily, and many boys, and perhaps some girls, have been sent there as incorrigibles who should merely have been reprimanded and sent home to their parents with them, and sent home for better discipline. There has been a two-ready response on the part of parents and guardians who wished to shoulder off the expense and trouble of maintaining children upon the State. This must be stopped. A bill to restrict commitments to Superior Courts, and that under very rigid restrictions, is now before the Legislature and should be adopted. On the other hand, a more expeditious system of graduating the inmates of the school into outside and self-sustaining service ought to be adopted. It is not desirable that any child should be retained in the institution after his reform has been satisfactorily accomplished; to keep him longer would generate a sense of dependence upon the State, a disinclination to effort in his own behalf. As rapidly as possible the boys and girls should be passed along to service in reliable families and in other honorable avenues of self-maintenance. The school must have a vent or it will clog. We are advised that in Australia the system of distributing children from reformatories among families needing help for various purposes is extensively practiced, and that the law of that country provides for a systematic supervision of such children by inspectors specially appointed for the purpose. In the case in hand, some portion of the appropriation asked might well be used for a similar purpose.

And now as to the problem which confronts the State. The Whittier School, despite its defects, is performing a valuable service for the commonwealth. That much is certain. Whatever may be said by way of criticizing its founding or administration, the only logical conclusion is that the enterprise ought to be carried forward, and its efficiency increased. The Legislature should frown upon all attempts to make it a "show place" or an establishment for furthering the personal ambitions or pride of its managers. It is a sober adjunct of society, which, being once inaugurated, must be maintained. The accommodations are inadequate and should be extended at once. In another place we publish a letter from the trustees to the Governor, setting forth the requirements of the school in the way of new buildings, accessories and maintenance. The aggregate appropriation called for is $416,000. This is a very large draft upon the State treasury, and, we think, may be pruned down somewhat, but probably not less than $350,000 would be required to provide absolutely necessary buildings and equipments and conduct the institution in a proper manner for the next two years. The items of the requisition are as follows:

Kitchen, bakery and commissary building.....	10,000
Brick barn.....	8,000
Cow and hay barn.....	3,000
Quarters for drill, exercise and shelter in inclement weather.....	6,000
New water supply.....	8,000
Buildings for girls, and equipments.....	65,000
Buildings for boys, and equipments.....	50,000
Addition to electric plant.....	2,500
Nursery stock.....	3,500
Additional cows, horses and implements.....	2,500
Laundry, machine shop and blacksmith shop.....	10,000
Fees for architect and superintendent of construction.....	7,500
Total for improvements.....	$176,000
Maintenance of 400 children two years, at $300 per year.....	240,000
Total.....	$416,000

After a careful personal investigation of the subject, we propose to criticize these estimates in detail. The amounts sought for buildings are too large, and some of the buildings called for are unnecessary—at least the demand for their construction is not urgent. We believe that the method of procedure outlined in this large demand is fundamentally at fault. There is too evident an intention to "begin at the big end," instead of commencing with smaller things and working up. With the labor of so many boys and young men at their disposal, what is to prevent the management from purchasing its own materials from time to time as required, hiring competent superintendents and foremen, and erecting their own buildings at a greatly reduced cost? Why was not this plan outlined in the requisition? Already the institution affects to give instruction in carpenter work; why not in bricklaying and other branches of building as well? Why not set the boys at the task of erecting their own structures? This would give them training that would be of great practical benefit. It would efface their ambition and center it on a large project. It would obviate the necessity of providing, at great expense, other means of employment. The work might not go forward with so much expedition, or so satisfactory as if the buildings were to be erected by contract, and it would undoubtedly require the most minute supervision, but the undertaking would be accomplished inexpensively, and with advantage to the participants. Many hands make light work. The buildings called for are detached, and are plain in construction. The boys with proper teaching could build them.

The call for a building or semi-detached wing to provide kitchen, store-room and commissary is justified. The demand for a brick barn to cost $8000, and a hay barn to cost $3000, is extravagant. Much cheaper structures would answer all absolute requirements. In this country a tightly inclosed building is not necessary or even desirable for horses or cattle. The requisition for $6000 to provide barracks for drill, exercise and shelter in inclement weather is not justified. There is so little inclement weather in this country that, when it does come, the regular quarters will suffice. Let the boys find the most of their exercise in work, the rest in drill and on the playgrounds. If a gymnasium is an essential it may be established in a large room over the proposed stable, or in other quarters available. There are many other buildings more useful and necessary than a gymnasium.

The call for $8000 to provide a new water supply may represent a necessity of the school, but the men who sold that land to the State under a guaranty of adequate water rights ought to foot the bill. It would probably be cheaper for the institution to pipe its own supply from its source than to patronize the East Whittier Water and Land Company.

The necessity for new buildings for both the girls and the boys is apparent, in view of the over-crowded condition of the institution. But, if the plan of construction above outlined were adopted, we believe that much less than $115,000 would suffice.

The call for a new machine shop, blacksmith shop and laundry is quite proper, and its acquisition would materially improve the facilities for instruction in useful trades. It is estimated that only about one-tenth of the boys care to fit themselves for farming, and there is a general clamor for a chance to acquire a trade. The school will achieve the best results by giving them employment that is congenial.

The proposed fees for architect and superintendent of construction—$7500—seem rather large.

The demand for $2500 for additional electric light plant is probably all right. An expert electrician can tell whether the estimate is reasonable or not.

The requisition for $2500 to provide cows, work horses and farming implements is too big. Instead of driving a whole herd of cows in to commence with, let the school work into the dairy business gradually, and its efforts are much more apt to be crowned with success.

Against the item of $8500 for nursery stock, the same criticism holds. It is another attempt to begin "at the big end." Let the boys who are learning to be horticulturists propagate their own nursery stock; this will constitute a valuable part of their instruction, and it will save the State some money. As to the project for providing drying and canning works, it will be time to talk about that when the fruit trees on the farm begin to bear.

The largest demand—that for $240,000 for maintenance for two years—is probably not unreasonable. The average cost of $25 per month for board, clothing and instruction does not seem high, although it can undoubtedly be lessened under a rigidly economical administration, and especially after the institution gets into the way of raising its own produce and fruit and supplying its own milk, eggs and butter. Let the girls look after the hens.

There remains one other question to discuss, and that is the proposed removal of the girls' branch of the school to the institution originally provided for the feeble-minded in Santa Clara county. We oppose this on every principle of economy and efficiency. It is a scheme designed to divert a part of the appropriation to a spot less desirable, on many accounts, than is Whittier, and to provide places for a few more politicians. The girls would not be so safely located or so well cared for as they may be at Whittier, with proper accommodations provided, and the expense to the State of maintaining two separate institutions would be considerably augmented. Besides, the superintendent should not be a man and a "politician," but a woman and a mother. Without question, the girls at Whittier have not been so well provided for as the boys. This is a discrimination which is not justifiable, and the shortcoming should be rectified as soon as possible. Let the Legislature make a sufficient appropriation to provide suitable buildings at Whittier for the girls, and let them have every advantage to fit themselves for usefulness. Let them be housed, clothed, fed and disciplined with all the care that is given to the boys, and let their occupations and instruction give them an incentive for better lives.

Finally, we say to the State of California: Stand by the Whittier School, and make it all that was contemplated in the original design. You cannot accomplish in any other way so much to redeem the erring, and benefit society. Personal ambitions and vanities must give way to the requirements of the great cause in hand, and the utmost economy and efficiency must be required of the management. If any man or men stand in the way of this accomplishment, let him or them be made to step aside. The Whittier School must be for the benefit of the boys and girls of this State who have made a wrong start in life, and who need to be put to the right about and started on the good road.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Bishop Oake of Buffalo attended a Christmas service seventy years ago, and can remember all about it. In the audience were many revolutionary heroes. Ben Butler struck out the words "So help me, God," from the official oath which he took as Governor of Massachusetts, and he did so, "The Constitution of this State has no reference to God."

Ex-Gov. Garcelon of Maine, now 83 years old, is a rather spry old gentleman and fond of horses. He may often be seen being driven in a carriage by the street of Lewistown, and he handles the reins with skill.

Budd Doble, the well-known jockey, who has held the reins over Nancy Hanks in all her wonderful performances on the trotting track this year, and the distinction of having been celebrated in verse by Dr. Holmes.

Bishop Doane is to have a carved wood throne in the cathedral at Albany. It is the gift of Mrs. E. E. Doane, and is said to be the finest thing of the kind in America. The wood is black oak, and the throne is twenty-two feet high.

Senator Proctor of Vermont contemplates erecting in Washington an elegant mansion, built of marble from his own State and of small pieces of marble, and in the style of the White House.

John D. Rockefeller is having a massive oak case, similar to the one he has in his stable. It has doors of polished oak, with brass hinges and heavy plate glass. The inside will be lined with purple plush, and, when completed, the bits which shine in the eyes of the horses will be arranged in this magnificent case.

FOREIGN NOTABLES.

The Chinese Emperor's English studies advance rapidly, much to the disgust of the conservative court officials opposed to western ideas. His Majesty is also learning French.

Signor Crispi, it is said, intends to spend some time in Paris, his object being to convince Frenchmen that no one is more anxious than he to bring about a close alliance between France and Italy.

M. Droulede, the French statesman, used to be called the soldier-poet of France. His first volume of poems was published during the Franco-Prussian war, and quickly ran through seven editions.

Empress Eugenie spends two or three hours every morning in her study, and she is to be published into twenty-five years after her death. She will not allow any one to have a glimpse at the manuscript.

In his great speech in the Reichstag in opposition to the Army Bill, Eugen Richter made a strong statement that already the German laborer has to work a month and a half to enable him to pay his share of the cost of the army and navy.

Dr. Herbert Vaughan, archbishop of Westminster, who, it is said, will be raised to the cardinalate on the occasion of the Pope's jubilee in 60 years of age, was consecrated in 1872, and on the death of Archbishop Manning became the latter's successor.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the well-known English statesman, who has been chosen to lead the Liberal party in the absence of Mr. Gladstone, is a triple-chained man of ponderous physique, with a bland, persuasive manner, and, though professionally a rampart, takes particular pride in the fact that he can trace his descent in an unbroken male line through the royal house of Plantagenet to the year 860. He is now 65.

GOOD WORDS FOR STEPHEN.

White is a good politician, as he has shown in his successful campaign for the Senate, but if he is all that his speeches seem to indicate, he has a story or two in his head above the ground floor, and they are stored with something more valuable than a mere knowledge of the art of manipulation. (Quaint and Quaker.)

Estamos pues de enhorabuena, pues aparte de que los últimos Senadores de California han sido del norte o centro del Estado, y no han demostrado gran interés por esta sección, todo el mundo sabe que el Sr. White es un muchacho talentoso y una gran actividad, y no nos cabe duda de que será uno de los mejores Senadores que California ha tenido. LAY SERMONS.

There is no thought which is more satisfying and comforting to the true child of God than the thought that all his ways are marked out by his Heavenly Father.

"He leadeth me!" How much that means to the Christian's soul. How much of restfulness, of security, of peace, is embodied in it. It is true that we are free moral agents, capable of choosing or refusing what God sets before us, but when once the human will is in accord with the Divine will, then it is that harmonious relations ensue, and our desires are all Godward and the cry of our hearts is, "Not my will, but Thine be done."

"He leadeth me!" Is the way dark and gloomy, and do sorrows encompass about, with what a thrill of gladness comes home the thought to us, that before us is the Almighty leading and guiding us, though it is so dark that we cannot see the way of our feet. And when we walk trustfully, patiently and submissively, in God's own good time, the light shall break around us and the shadows all roll away, and we shall see above us the sunlight of God's purpose, and the limitless sky of His love.

The more we love Him, the more, sometimes, he sanctifies us through sorrow. "For these are they who have come out of great tribulation and have had their robes made white in the blood of the Lamb." It was these who were crowned in that blessed hour, when the light of Christ was shed forever with His people. And their white robes were spotless. Christ's blood had washed away every stain, and so glorious were they that in that prophetic vision they stood out preeminently among the redeemed, exciting the wonder and the admiration of those who beheld them. How small to that glorious, white-robed throng must have seemed the tribulations through which they had passed, in view of the glory and the gladness that came after.

And another thing worthy of our consideration, in addition to the manner in which they were clothed, is the fact that they were permitted especial nearness to God's presence. "Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve Him day and night in His temple; and He that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Could there be any more beautiful picture than this of the delightful companionship which Christ will accord to His redeemed ones—"those who have come out of great tribulation?"

There are those among them who knew what it was to be hungry here on earth. Perhaps they were poor and friendless and in want, like some of His children now, but out of great tribulation they came, holding fast to their love for Him, never doubting His promises, led by Him through all the darkness; but now they dwell in the light of His presence, and it would be hard to feel them and lead them to fountains of living waters.

This earth life of ours is a very minute portion of man's existence, and it is not a life of recompense but of discipline, and if we would always bear in mind that it is but a discipline, our trials seem lighter. "Sorrow is but for the night, joy cometh with the morning." When the glad morning of eternal day breaks upon our sight then will come the gladness of God's presence and the healing of His love.

But even here the Christian's life should be joyous. God gives to most of us abundant cause for thanksgiving. Those of us who have health and the comforts of life have no slight cause for gratitude. If we would consider the blessings that we have, rather than those that we desire, we should not be as blind as we now are to the gracious goodness of our Heavenly Father.

We are very apt to think that if we could lay down our burdens and take up some other burden of our own choosing we could go on our way much more cheerfully. There are those who think that others have no such heavy cross to bear as their own. Perhaps no better illustration of this mistaken feeling could be found than in the beautiful poem by the Hon. Mrs. Charles Whitcomb, entitled "The Changed Cross," which is as follows:

"It was a time of sadness, and my heart, Although it knew and loved the better part, Felt wearied with the conflict and the strife, And all the needed discipline of life.

"And while I thought on these, as given to me, My trials tests of faith and love to be— It seemed as if I never could be sure That faithful to the end I should endure.

"And thus, no longer trusting to His might Who says, 'we walk by faith and not by sight,' Doubtful and almost yielding to despair, The thought arose, 'my cross I cannot bear.

"Far heavier its weight must surely be Than those of others which I daily see; Oh! if I might another burden choose, Methinks I should not tear my crown to lose.

"A solemn silence reigned on all around— E'en Nature's voices uttered not a sound; The evening shadows seemed of peace to tell, And sleep upon my weary spirit fell.

"A moment's pause—and then a heavenly light Beamed full upon my wondering, raptured sight; Angelic silvery wings seemed everywhere, And angelic music thrilled the balmy air.

"Then one, more fair than all the rest to see— One to whom all the others bowed the knee— Came gently to me as I trembling lay, And, 'Follow me,' He said, 'I am the Way.'

"Then, speaking thus, He led me far above, And there, beneath a canopy of love, Crosses of divers shapes and size were seen, Larger and smaller than my own had been.

"And one there was, most beautiful to behold, A little one, with jewels set in gold; Ah, this, methought, I can with comfort wear, For it will be an easy one to bear.

"And so the little cross I quickly took; But, all at once, my frame beneath it shook. The sparkling jewels, fair were they to see, But far too heavy was their weight for me.

"This may not be," I cried, and looked again, To see if there were any here could ease my pain; But one by one, I passed them slowly by, 'Till on a lovely one I cast my eye.

"Fair flowers around its sculptured form entwined, And dew and beauty seemed in it combined; Wondering, I gazed; and still I wondered more, To think so many should have passed it o'er.

"But Oh, that form so beautiful to see, Soon made its hidden sorrows known to me; 'Thou lay beneath those flowers and colors fair!' Sorrowing, I said, 'This cross I may not bear.'

"And so with each and all around— Not one to suit my need could there be found; Weeping, I laid each heavy burden down, As my guide gently said: 'No cross, no crown!'"

THE BACK OF YOU.

These are the days for the women with pretty necks, especially if they are pretty at the back. The pointed gown, the soft ruffle around the edge, the hair drawn up, all give a most graceful effect if there is any beauty at all. For that matter, women are apt to forget the charm of the back view of their sweet selves. She is a wise woman, who, instead of standing ready and expectant to meet him, sits down in a low chair in front of the mirror and pretends she doesn't know he is coming at just that particular minute. You see, when the eyes have met there is little else to do. It is all over to a great extent.

Why not prolong the effect? Give him a chance to see you a moment when he fancies you do not know he is there. Let him note the glow of the freckle in your hair; let him take in the grace of your sweeping gown, the thoughtful bend of your head; give him a chance to come up behind you and say the word that shall turn your face to his, and put all the guesses of your smile and voice and welcome in his sight. It is a good deal better so, is it not? You will avoid the strange awkwardness that mars the joy of so many first meetings after long absence, an awkwardness in which you each feel that you should be more happy than you are, and show more happiness.

The style of gown of today's fashions is just the thing for this. High collars and exaggerated headpieces were a little out of line, but now that all is so simple and graceful it will be as well to remember "back effects" as a legitimate part of your repertoire of charms.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. S. V. Landt Elected President—A State Circle Formed to Aid the King's Daughters occurred their annual election of officers. Mrs. Birdsall, who has so efficiently presided for the last two years, retiring, and Mrs. S. V. Landt, by a vote of acclamation, being made president of the order.

A union circle of the King's Daughters of this city, named "The Children's Rest Circle," has just been formed, for the commendable purpose of clothing and paying a small sum per week to keep in one of the homes of the city the children of the mothers who are obliged to go into the County Hospital for surgical treatment, but have nowhere to leave their helpless little ones. For lack of treatment Dr. Brainard, physician in charge at the County Hospital, states that deserving mothers are dragging out a painful life, and some instances of children who are ultimately grave. The Order of King's Daughters, as an order, has no source of revenue, each circle taking up its own charity and finding means of supporting it as best they can; but the wearing of the little silver cross is often given gratuitous aid in carrying out their plans of doing for others "in His name."

"Hard Times Party." Guardian Council No. 90, of the Order of Chosen Friends, gave a very pleasant "hard times party" at their hall, No. 107 1/2 North Main street, Friday evening last, at which a short programme was rendered, opened by a very interesting address by W. H. Knight, setting forth the advantages enjoyed by members of the Order of Chosen Friends. This was followed by a piano and vocal duet by Mrs. Mary Kimball, late of London, Eng., and William Artel of this city, after which a piano solo by Miss Dryfus was very ably executed and enjoyed by all. Refreshments were then served, followed by a social dance. Every one went away well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Tangled Up in a Buggy. A curious accident occurred yesterday on Broadway above First, wherein A. B. Greenwald's big hay mare got tangled up in the wheels of a horse-drawn carriage. A clerk for Mr. Greenwald was driving up the street, and to urge the mare tapped her lightly with a whip, when the animal kicked, and one foot landed behind the singletree and crossbar connecting the shafts. With the aid of a number of men who rushed to the young man's assistance, the animal was extricated, but with great difficulty.

—to match in the big linen department; moderate prices prevail—narrow, medium and wide table linens—our specialty: good treatment, whether you wish to purchase or not.

“the new idea

—for spring will be two and three ruffled capes, made out of broadcloth and storm serges—you can find all kinds of broadcloths here; buy a “butterick pattern!

—they are always reliable, and you get a stylish cape at an inexpensive price—consult the delineator or secure a fashion sheet free of charge; this will give you a few cape hints.

“china silks in all shades;

—largely used for blouse waists; best assortment in the city; we are crowding sales in the big dress goods department of the town.

—agents for royal worcester corsets, best in the world, long, medium and short waists, $1.00 up; silk pongee corsets fit like a glove.

“We endeavor to impress the buying public with the one idea of better treatment; —more attention in showing goods; better facilities and more painstaking care than you can get elsewhere—a great deal of fun has been poked at us for advertising polite clerks by our competitors—do you realize that where a house shows frivolity in this respect they license their employees to do that which they have no right to do; it teaches them they can mistreat a customer and it will be overlooked simply because the proprietor thinks it funny to ridicule a competitor in the same line of business—we make it a rule to discuss with applicants for positions the way they have been educated to do and to get their ideas from personal observation what is the best thing to do; in this way we pick up a little here and there from these clerks and gain vast sums of wisdom and information, and wherever possible turn it to a good advantage—what is the result? any one can see at a glance by comparing this business now with that of one year ago; it shows the largest gains ever made by any dry goods house in this city—let a lady come into this house and we price her goods and she concludes to look around; she has been well treated; she goes out of the house with a good feeling and is well impressed—let her step into another store and the clerk treats her in a careless and indifferent manner and is inclined to be smart and snappish, even if the prices are 10 per cent less; she turns on her heels and walks away from the counter, and nine out of ten times returns here and buys her goods; it is human nature; a smart merchant will endeavor to sell goods at a reasonable and just profit and avoid trying to injure another by cutting prices—a dog will bark at a stranger and he will howl if he is kicked by the same party and scamper away—how can one merchant sell goods less than another? the market of the world is open to every man; we do not solicit trade upon any other basis than a moderate and just profit on everything we sell—if a customer thinks she has been imposed upon by the clerk who waits upon her the liberty is granted her to bring the goods back and get the money she paid for it; this is justice; is it any wonder this treatment has out-ranked all others in the enormous growth the past year; one price; is there any better method known? plain figures; there is no room to doubt the price; a strict fulfillment of every line we advertise; this is right; this is the broad basis upon which we conduct this business, and it pays—more packages of ours can be seen upon the street; more people in front of the counters; this shows at once the power there is in just and proper methods; every traveling man will tell you he hears more about this house than any other as he travels through the country—this is a straw that shows the trend of public opinion; who cares for public opinion? it is public opinion that rules the world; where is the party who does not care for public opinion? we seek public favor by treating the public well; we are looking into the future for business, and we get it by polite and attentive salespeople—we are proud of the fact that every salesperson in this house takes an individual pride in treating the public well; as the business grows we grow with it—when you enter the doors of this house you get good treatment; whether you buy ten cents worth or a hundred dollars worth, or if you do not buy a cent's worth you are treated right when you conclude to leave the house—you can see the vast increase in the trade of this house; you can hear it everywhere; all salespeople in all lines of business have a good word to say for this business; why? we close saturday nights; they appreciate the principle of shorter hours.

—it is a critical test where to buy to the best advantage; where to make the money go the farthest—if you want to get posted we will take pleasure in showing you the goods; if you want samples for comparison you can have as many as you want; this is the crucial test; it tells you we are in the arena inviting comparison not only in prices but in good treatment as well—why will you hesitate when the opportunity is offered you; we say the trade of this house will show a greater increase this year than last; why? the house has become better advertised; it is becoming better known; the first three weeks of this year have shown a very large increase; we are afraid to tell you for fear you may doubt it; look at the big advance in dress goods sales; look at the big advance in linen sales; look at the big advance in cloak sales; all other departments are treading in the same beaten path of greater growth—the business of this house is growing as no other business is growing in this city; the dry goods trade alone is showing a wonderful increase; it is the mammoth dress goods department of this city today; it should grow; stock is larger; more salespeople; more pains taken in pleasing you—it is right methods and right ways that has given the dress goods trade its present prestige—take a look now at our dress goods department and compare it with a year ago; the linen trade is not only growing but it is booming; the linen room is today one of the big store attractions; it is gaining favor; it makes this linen headquarters—you travel 2500 miles before you see another—capes will be the big seller for spring in the cloak department or the manufacturer will sink a pile of money; capes! capes! everywhere it is capes; last season was a big one for capes; and in a greater one; look now through our cape stock; we gain prestige and trade by this first announcement; turn your attention to capes and you make no mistake; they will be the big things for the spring.

“finest all-wool serges for a —dollar a yard you ever saw; fine grade, all-wool serges usually sold for a dollar; monday, 75c buys them; pushing business in the dress goods department.

—a small quantity only; increasing trade by new methods.
—metal-handled umbrellas $1; they are worth one-half more; a new way to get trade—a lot of odds and ends in gent's underwear at one-half the marked price; we are closing out the gent's department.
—we are getting ready for spring; odds and ends in gent's underwear at one-half the marked price; we are nearly out of gent's furnishings; this department will soon be a thing of the past; we need more room for the enlargement of our dry goods business.

—where else can you get samples of dress goods as freely as here!—where else are goods shown with as much freedom!—where else will you be treated as well!—consider this; trade doubling up.

“the trade of this house

—is again moving upward; each week brings new trade and more of it; each week shows a large increase in sales—we are the largest advertisers; we work for trade, we push business, we bring desirable goods before your notice and sell everything at a reasonable and just profit—we are very largely increasing the dress goods trade; our entire energy is being directed to the big dress goods stock—all-wool bedfords, all-wool crepons, all-wool henriettas, worth and sold everywhere for 75c, 85c and a dollar a yard; here the “price is 55c

—think well of this; come and get samples for comparison—all-wool black goods, worth $1.25, worth $1.50, now $1.00—we give you samples for comparison; don't hesitate, but ask for samples—here is where the big dress goods trade is centered.

“we shall make the effort to —double dress goods sales this year; we will do it; do you doubt it? all-wool crepons 50c; all-wool henriettas 55c; all-wool bedford cords 55c; more than ordinary merit; you should see them.

—pushing up sales in dress goods; all-wool henriettas, 55c, elsewhere 75c.

“why we expect to double —dress goods sales; 46-inch henrietta, all-wool, extra quality, $1; extra quality hardly expresses the true meaning of what we want to say; we give samples for comparison.

“no disappointment

—if you come early—you will be disappointed if you come late—silk-alene down cushions, ruffled edge, large size; monday, as soon as the doors are open, 25c; regular dollar goods—don't put it off, you will be disappointed if you do—not to exceed two to each customer; don't expect more than two—only a small quantity; we urge early buying—on sale monday—in the linen department.

“have you seen the reduced

—prices on cloaks? we mean reduced prices; we are cleaning up for new spring goods; getting the old out at cost; at less than cost; getting the new in to make money; you can buy cloaks here this week cheaper than ever; we want to close out every garment; see our reduced prices in the biggest cloak department; selling more cloaks than all the other cloak houses combined; this is the house that is largely increasing trade.

—silk-striped surahs, 50c, dollar quality, suitable for blouse waists.

“what will

—interest the ladies more than down cushions!—we will offer in the linen department, monday, 100 down cushions, worth a dollar, for 25c each—first come first served! as a matter of fact they will all be sold early in the day.

“the dollar line of

—all-wool dress goods is something we want you to think about; it is one of the largest lines we show; our dollar line brings with it good values; goods of more than ordinary merit—the dollar line of “all-wool black dress goods

—contains over 100 different designs; some are exceptional bargains; the dollar line is deserving of your consideration.

—big sale of table linens; letting down the prices; best napkins you ever saw for $1.50.

“cloaks that were

—$10, were $9, were $8, now $5; we have bunched a big lot of odds and ends together and made one complete line, and they are being sold at $5 each; in some lines there may be a $2 and a 40; in others a $3 and a 42; other lines may have the missing sizes; in this way we give you a complete assortment and at a little over half their real value; you may find the article to suit you in this line; look them over; we are here to show the goods whether you wish to purchase or not.

“all-wool whipcords, all shades,

—worth a dollar, monday, 75c—bargains in dress goods monday.
—all-wool poplin, or assume call them, old fashion empress cloth, $1 a yd.
—all-wool bengalines, 75c and $1 a yard—bargains in the dress goods department monday.
—fine all-wool serges, all shades, 75c a yard; better goods you never saw for a dollar; monday, 6 bits a yard—we expect a large dress goods trade monday.

“windsor ties, 25c

—some are worth 40c, some are worth 35c, and others worth the price we ask, all at 25c—better windsor ties for 50c; crepons and illuminated surah silks, plain, plaid and embroidered; a few hemstitched, choice for 50c, worth up to 75c—largely increasing trade, and this is the way we do it.

—silk-alene down cushions, 25c, monday, any other day $1.00; come early; sale limited two to one customer.

BUSINESS.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES.
LOS ANGELES, JAN. 21, 1893.

Shipments of the so-called "summer" vegetables from this country to San Francisco are proving very remunerative this winter. During the past week Los Angeles string beans have brought 25c a pound in the city at the bay, while sweet peas from this section have commanded 90¢ a pound. There ought to be big money in such returns as these. Tomato shipments have also done fairly well, the prices at San Francisco ranging from 75c to 1.25 per box, according to quality. Considerable quantities of peppers have also been sent North, where they brought 90¢ per pound.

The meat market is firm and higher for some varieties. The advanced 1/2c a pound during the week, while work is up. There seems to be some difference of opinion among dealers as to the future, but many incline to the belief that still higher prices will prevail.

New York Stocks.

New York, Jan. 21.—Extraordinary activity for a half holiday again attended dealings in the stock market today. The overwhelming gains in cash deposits and surplus, as shown by the bank statement, were not anticipated and had a marked effect upon the market. The bulls reported their favorites with vigor. On the other hand, realizing was still extremely heavy and material concessions were made. But it was a matter of course that the important losses were confined entirely to industrial stocks. Distillers closed with a loss of 24¢ per cent. on the day. Cordage and Lead Trust each 1/2%, and Sugar 1/2%, all closing at the lowest figures. Railroad shares were strong almost all day. A buoyant tone marked dealings right up to the final trading. The only material advance was in Lackawanna which rose 1 1/2 per cent., although strength was particularly noticeable in the grangers. All prominent stocks rose large fractions and closed very firm in the face of continued realizations. Bonds showed a buoyant temper.

Government bonds closed dull and steady. New York, Jan. 21.—Money—On call, easy; closing offered at 3% per cent.

PRIME MERCANTILE PAPER—3% @ 6 per cent.

STERLING EXCHANGE—Quiet; 60-day bills, 4.80; demand, 4.87 1/2.

First--Have You Ever Tried Germea for Breakfast?

—It can be prepared for the table in less than ten minutes. It is highly nutritious, agreeable to the taste and the most easily digested of all foods.

Second--What is Germea?

—It is a preparation manufactured from the choicest California White Wheat, by a patented process, through which the germ is extracted from the wheat, forming one of the best, most economical, nutritious and healthful foods known.

Third--Where is Germea Made?

—At Stockton, California, by the SPERRY MILLING COMPANY, who are the sole and exclusive patentees and manufacturers.

Fourth--Where Can Germea be Had?

—At every grocery store on the Pacific Coast, in the East, in Australia, in Europe, in the Hawaiian Islands, in Africa, and in the storeroom of every connoisseur and judge of good things of this life.

FINALLY—

—If you have not tried it, order a package of your grocer, follow the direction on the package, and you will join with the thousands of others in saying that it is the BEST BREAKFAST FOOD you have ever tasted.

The JOHN T. CUTTING COMPANY, Sole Agents.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the past week occurred Wednesday evening at the residence of C. S. Vance, No. 621 South Grand avenue. The event was a surprise party tendered to his sister, Miss Fannie Vance. The young lady having been invited out for a 6 o'clock dinner, was greeted on her return by sweet strains of music from Lowinsky's Orchestra, and a host of friends welcomed her home. During her absence a few friends had taken possession of the house and soon changed its appearance from that of the quiet home life to a scene of joy and festivity. The spacious parlors were canvassed for dancing, and the reception-room was devoted to cards. At 10:30 the dining-room was thrown open to the guests, where elegant refreshments were served from a beautifully decorated table. In the center was a lovely floral piece with a border of ferns about the table and sweet-scented violets strewn over it. At 12 o'clock the following guests took their departure: Mrs. Burgoyne of Topeka, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. John Scarborough of Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Dell (née Mollie Wash) of St. Louis, Mrs. E. Rigglin, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis, Dr. and Mrs. Colburn, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woodcock, Misses Vance, Wallace, Conrad, Metcalf of San Diego, Ida and Cora Mathews, Seeburger, Eggleston, Ida and Lizzie Newkirk, Keller, Tufts, Armstrong and Elliott, Messrs. C. S. Vance, Will Kemper, W. T. Edwards, Dr. J. Choate, J. Houx, E. Burgoyne, J. G. Vance, V. Hensley, W. M. Humphreys, Dr. Hendrick, Mason, Gibson, Balfour, Vance, H. Toberman, W. Kolmar, R. B. Vance, Elliott, Glen Hack and George Wallace.

A BON BON PARTY.
Late Monday evening Miss Edna Kavanaugh, of South Olive street, gave a bon bon party in honor of her fifteenth birthday. The evening was spent in music and games, after which refreshments were served, the friends leaving at a late hour, wishing her many returns of the day. Among the guests were: Misses May Russell, Ada Moore, Alice Kirk, Alice Moore, Isabel Murray, Laura Finch, Edna Kavanaugh, Ed Pierson, Rob Morgan, Ben Starnard, A. Goldwater, Edmund Tasker, George Starnard, Lester Kavanaugh.

EXCHANGE PARTY.
A delightful air of hospitality pervaded the rooms of the Woman's Exchange on Broadway last Friday evening. It was on the occasion of Mrs. Capen's committee meeting to arrange for the fourth exchange party, to be held in Armory Hall Monday evening, January 30. The rooms were brilliantly lighted and the many beautiful and artistic pieces of work showed to great advantage simply as effective decorations. Masses of purple and white violet filled the air with fragrance. Prof. Lowinsky rendered most delightfully a selection from Tannhauser. Refreshments were served at 10 o'clock, when the committee announced that the gathering at Armory Hall January 30 would be of the same nature as the others, with dancing and cards from 8:30 to 12.

PROGRESSIVE ECURIE.
A pleasant progressive ecurie party was given by Miss Garrett of West Seventh street on Friday evening in honor of Miss Elliott of San Bernardino. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Averan, Mr. and Mrs. Schell, Mrs. Elliott, the Misses Elliott, Conradi, Ganser, Brunsan, Philip, Messrs. Devereux, Davidson, Philip, Gress, Manley, Elliott and Jones.

"THE TRIUMPH OF FANTASMA."
Last Friday evening the guests of Arrowhead Hot Springs Hotel were entertained in a most novel manner. Under the efficient management of Fred V. Adams of Los Angeles, the capacious assembly hall was transformed into a veritable abode of "this satanic majesty." A stage was very adeptly arranged across the entire end of the hall, on which a pantomime in five acts was rendered. The cast of characters was as follows:
Fantasma (queen of the fairies).....Ida White
Mephistopheles (his satanic majesty).....Fred V. Adams
Jester.....Charles White
Skeleton.....Bristol H. Cardboard
Nymph.....Isabel Jarbeau
Faries.....Samuel Butler
.....Bessie Kelly
.....Lizzie Black
.....Lottie Jenkins
.....Alice La Rouchie
.....May Carmen
.....Jack Butler
.....Robert Lawrence
.....Joe Halstead
.....Albert McKee
Director.....John Hodges

The curtain rose promptly at 8 p.m., and each number was carried out without a break or hitch. The management deserve credit for their earnest efforts, which made the whole affair such a delightful success.

JOLLY TALLY-BO PARTY.
A jolly "tally-bo" party started from the Norwood last Monday morning for a day's outing over the favorite drive through Pasadena to Baldwin's Ranch, where the party lunched, and were treated to an inspection of the valuable horses; returning home through Sunny Slope vineyard and San Gabriel. Among the party were: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Averan, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jameson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Schell, Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Albaugh, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Magauran, Miss C. Bresnan, Miss A. Exton, Miss M. McCarty, Miss K. McCarty, J. M. Manley, C. Talmage, F. Burns, G. T. Exton.

CRAWFORD-MICHAEL.
No. 280 West Fourteenth street was the scene of a very pretty marriage ceremony last Monday evening, the contracting parties being Mr. James L. Crawford and Miss Rose Michael. Rev. D. E. Coleman performed the ceremony in his usual pleasing and impressive manner. Mr. Crawford is one of Los Angeles' young business men, and the bride has been a resident of this city for some time, and has a host of friends.

A PLEASANT PARTY.
Miss Flora Blackman entertained a few of her friends at the spacious residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Blackman, No. 1818 Lovelace avenue, on Tuesday evening. The evening was pleasantly spent in games, including good music rendered by Miss Blackman and Mr. Horton, after which refreshments were served. The following guests were there: Misses Bumiller, Katie Morford, McHenry, Conchaine, Messrs. F. McGregor, W. C. Mullen, W. C. Wolfe, W. P. Jeffries, R. L. Horton, R. Randall, Charles Kitts, C. Blackman.

THE OXYMEL.
The Oxymel Club is studying the modern Southern writers just now, and their topic last Monday evening was Joel Chandler Harris, which they discussed at the residence of Judge McKeeby on Third street, where they were entertained by George McKeeby. Miss Foy read a fine original paper, and Miss Murphy and Mr. Byram gave excellent readings.

The club will meet with Miss Lockhart on the evening of January 30, and Thomas Nelson Page will be discussed.

SWINNEY-DALGLEISH.
Vincent Methodist Church was crowded last Wednesday evening, on the occasion of the marriage of Miss Jeanette Dalgleish, an active member of that church, and Rudolph Swinney, formerly of Ventura county, now of this city. The church had been magnificently decorated by the friends of the bride, who is a prominent member of the Epworth League and the leader of the Junior League. A solid bank of greens, strewn with starry marguerites and bordered with lilacs, rose from the chancel. In its center glowed in electric lights the letters "D" and "S," the bride's initial shining with a fainter light than that of the groom. As the ceremony proceeded the "S" grew more and more dim, and when the minister pronounced the couple husband and wife, went out altogether.

The ushers were young ladies from the Epworth League—Misses Margaret Hutton, Grace Tubbs, Lottie and Edith Johnson and Daisy Haigler. Mrs. F. E. Olds played the wedding march as the bridal party entered, preceded by a page—Master George Bowman—bearing the marriage certificate. He was followed by eight little attendants, members of the Junior League—Misses Grace Cressinger, Maud Deering, Edie Shaffer, Minnie Montague, and Masters Earl Tubbs, Fred Bright, Guy Fisher and Harold Haigler.

The bride wore a white albatross gown, the bridal veil being held in place by a spray of orange blossoms. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, Rev. F. V. Fisher, and afterward congratulations, hearty and sincere, were extended to the couple.

EN MASQUE.
Angelina Circle No. 108, Companions of the Forest, gave its first masquerade ball on Thursday evening at the Armory. Upward of one hundred and twenty-five couples attended, a large per centage of whom were in masquerade costume. The music was excellent throughout, and the affair was a great success, owing to the efficient work of the several committees.

EQUESTRIAN PARTY.
A jolly equestrian party rode from the Hotel Liscola to Garvanza Friday, and after a luncheon, returned home in fine spirits. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McLaughlin of Park City, Utah; J. C. McLaughlin, Muskegon, Mich.; Mrs. W. O. Randolph, Mrs. N. C. Berlekamp and Mrs. C. Dele of this city.

MILITARY MUSICAL CLUB.
The Seventh Regiment Musical Club, new one of the acknowledged social powers at the Armory, has sent out invitations for another complimentary concert and dance to be held at the parlors on Thursday evening next. The club proposes to give a public entertainment soon, the proceeds to go to the Newby's Home, or some other equally worthy institution of a similar nature. The club now numbers about fifteen members, under the direction of Prof. A. Jesse Shade, who is a member of Co. F, of the local militia.

PERSONAL MENTION.
Among the late arrivals at the St. Angelo are Dr. M. L. Jameson and wife, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hodgson, Miss Evangeline Hodgson, Detroit, Mich.; B. T. Esler, Redlands; G. H. Carlton and wife, Cleveland, O.; F. C. Doran, wife and two daughters, Chicago.

Mrs. J. W. Campbell and children, Mrs. Beveridge and her granddaughter, Miss Ray Beveridge of San Francisco, spent the day yesterday at Santa Monica.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Cole and Miss Lillian Cole of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pope of Quincy, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hoffman of Fort Worth, Tex., are guests at the Virginia.

Mrs. A. Bristol and Mrs. A. B. Slaughter of Chicago are visiting Mrs. H. L. Hawver of University.

IN THE CARD MARKET.
Mrs. M. E. Stilson will be at home to her friends, at No. 1831 Carroll avenue, after February 15.

The Mistletoe Club announces its second social and dance to take place on Friday evening next at Maccabee Hall on North Main street.

Mrs. C. Ducommun has issued invitations for the annual reception to be tendered by the Ladies' Benevolent Society at her residence, No. 1847 South Grand avenue, on next Thursday, from 2 to 10 p.m. The dues of members and donations of friends will be acceptable on this occasion.

The Letter Carriers' Association of Los Angeles will give their annual ball next Friday evening at Armory Hall.

THE SEWER COMMITTEE.

Four Men Recommended for Appointment as Inspectors.
The Sewer Committee of the City Council called to meet at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, to consider the applications for appointments as sewer inspectors, did not materialize until late in the afternoon. This fact was explained by one of the committee in answer to inquiries: "There were four hundred applications, more or less, and each individual applicant has friends here urging their appointment, and from the arguments each applicant is peculiarly fitted for the position of Sewer Inspector—and the $4 per diem the position brings—when the inspector works."

There was so much wire-pulling and buttonholing that the members of the committee scattered to meet quietly to consider the questions, taking the credentials of all applicants for consideration. Late in the afternoon the committee met in the Board of Public Works' rooms, and after some deliberation decided to recommend to the Council the appointment of M. J. Darcy, J. H. Smith, Charles Derby and H. L. Ryan to fill the positions in the districts now open for work. There are sixteen inspectors to appoint and other selections will be made and submitted to the Council as necessity demands.

The Sewer committee decided to recommend that the City Engineer appoint an assistant to supervise the field work along the lines of sewers.

In five or ten days work will be so far laid out as to necessitate two additional inspectors; there is little reason to believe there will be more than these two additional appointments for some time at any rate.

THE ARAR CLUB.
The Arar Club met last Thursday with Miss Lockhart at her home on Ottawa street. The first soprano has been strengthened by Mrs. Anner, and Miss Van Dyke, the second, by Miss Anna Metcalf, and the alto by Mrs. Hance-Owens. Good work was done and a delightful day spent. The guest of the day was Miss Knickerbocker, who charmed the club with her thoroughly artistic and unaffected singing. The club meets next Thursday with Miss Van Dyke on Olive street.

A NEW CHOR FORMED.
The First Presbyterian Church has engaged a quartette choir, which will hereafter render the music. The quartette is composed of Mrs. Anner, Miss Lockhart, Messrs. Morrison and Newkirk. Mr. Morrison, the leader, selects his music and words with special reference to the sermon to be preached—an important point, usually overlooked by choir leaders—and which adds immeasurably to the effect of the sermon.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.
The Caledonian Club give a concert next Thursday evening at the Los Angeles Theater in celebration of Burns' anniversary, when lovers of Burns' songs will doubtless enjoy a treat. Mrs. Minnie Hance-Owens will assist, and other well-known musicians.

REDO RESIGN.
Herr Rubo has resigned the conductorship of the Apollo Club. Irregularity of attendance at rehearsals on the part of the members of the club is said to be the reason.

A MUSICAL.
A musical was held at the St. Angelo on Thursday evening. The programme was made up of recitations, vocal selections, piano, violin, mandolin, guitar and Chinese fiddle solos. The evening closed with dancing.

TO MAKE THE HAIR GROW A NATURAL COLOR, prevent baldness, and keep the scalp healthy, Hall's Hair Renewer was invented, and has proved itself successful.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

The attraction of the musical world this week will be the concert by the Euterpean Quartette which will take place next Wednesday evening at the Los Angeles Theater. Miss Katherine Kimball will come down from San Francisco to sing specially on this occasion, and the opportunity of again hearing her glorious voice will be an irresistible attraction to her host of Los Angeles friends. Miss O'Donoghue will be the pianist, J. Bond Francisco the violinist and Miss Beatrice Francisco the accompanist. To this array of talent add the quartette itself and we have an unusually fine combination.

Among the musical treats to come will be the oratorio of The Creation by Haydn, rendered by a chorus of seventy-five to one hundred voices under the direction of Prof. Bacon. The concert will probably occur in March or early April. Modini-Wood has already been secured as tenor soloist, and some of the best vocal talent of the city is to be engaged for the other parts. Rehearsals occur every Friday evening at 7:30, in the parlors of the First Congregational Church. Those who wish to sing in the chorus should apply immediately to Prof. Bacon, in the Potomac Block, or L. Zimmann, No. 123 South Broadway.

RAILROAD AFFAIRS.

A Tariff for Cut Flowers to the East.

The Railroads Encourage a New Southern California Industry.

The Prosecution of the Ticket Brokers in Chicago.

A Raymond and Whitcomb Excursion Arrives—A New Railroad Scheme Up North—General and Local Notes.

The Southern Pacific, in connection with the Santa Fe and other connecting lines, has issued a new tariff, effective on the 28th inst., in compliance with the demands of a new but growing business. This is a tariff on cut flowers from California to Chicago and other common points. The rate will be $1.25 per hundred, fully released, the charges to be prepaid or guaranteed. This is the rate by regular freight train, but the flowers can go through on approximate passenger time at the rate of $2.25 per hundred. The charge for bringing back the empty special flower refrigerator cars will be $105 each from the Missouri River. The shipping of cut flowers from Southern California is destined to become a great industry. The flowers which grow so beautiful and luxuriant in this climate will, in proper seasons, find a ready market in Eastern cities, where roses in winter sell for from $3 to $18 a dozen. A carload of cut flowers would be a large consignment, but it would be none too great for Chicago buyers, if they can be landed in that city in perfect condition.

The Southern Pacific officials on their inspection tour proceeded toward El Paso yesterday, after viewing Redlands and vicinity.

A Raymond and Whitcomb excursion arrived over the Santa Fe yesterday. There were about one hundred passengers in the party.

The Atlantic and Pacific Surgical Association met at the Needles the other day. J. P. Kasler was elected president and W. M. Johnson secretary.

Henry L. Garretton, stenographer in the Southern California Railroad general manager's office, was married, yesterday, to Mrs. R. A. Sweeney, at La Canada.

On and after January 24 the 75-cent rate on beans, canned goods, wine and boxes to New Orleans, in force on the Southern Pacific, will apply also to Memphis, Cincinnati and Louisville.

W. R. A. Johnson, who is interested in the recently incorporated San Francisco and Santa Clara Railway, is quoted by the Examiner as saying that work will be commenced shortly on the main line between Ravenswood, near Menlo Park, and Gilroy. The company will also build from San José to Alviso, and from San José to San Mateo. The plans for the two latter lines are not yet matured, however. The main line, while not entering San José, will connect with the Alviso branch to that city, a short distance from the town. The line to Gilroy will cross the Southern Pacific at Mayfield.

The Chicago Herald of the 17th says: "The cases against the ticket scalpers, indicted by the last grand jury, will come to trial next week. There is no question on the wording of the statute or the guilt, under its provisions, of the persons indicted. The case will be entirely on the constitutionality of the act itself. The scalpers already have a decision in their favor, but the World's Fair officials, who are pushing the present case, think they can secure a different decision. Western railroads, especially, are awaiting the outcome of the case before announcing World's Fair rates. They claim they can profitably afford rates 25 per cent. less if scalpers are debarred from doing business."

A CORDIAL WELCOME.

Enthusiastic Reception of Maj. and Mrs. Keppel by the Salvationists.

The Salvation Army people, agreeable to promise, gave a grand welcome to their Pacific Coast commander and his wife, Maj. and Mrs. Keppel.

The several barracks of Los Angeles, strengthened by a number of visiting Salvation Army soldiers of both sexes, massed on Spring street, and, after a hearty outdoor reception and demonstration, marched to their barracks on Spring street, below Third, where an enthusiastic reception was tendered the Major and his wife, which was followed by a genuine love feast.

The hall was neatly decorated, and appropriate mottoes, bearing upon the work and life of Christ and of Christianity in general embellished the walls. A raised platform at the north end held about a hundred chairs, which were quickly filled by the ladies and ladies, veterans and recruits, while in front of them and in the center of the raised platform, was an arch, beautifully decorated with evergreens, and almost life-size bust portraits of Major and Mrs. Keppel relieved the barrenness of the large hall, and made a very handsome addition to the decorations.

Maj. Keppel made several short talks and was listened to with interest by the audience and earnestness by his army. The Major is pleasant speaker and has a pleasing appearance, large, well built and handsome.

Mrs. Keppel delivered one of the most interesting of "talks," they termed it—sermons the world would pronounce it. Earnestness was a marked characteristic in her talk, but she also showed intelligence in her subject and reasoned logically withal. Mrs. Keppel's personal appearance is striking—tall, commanding, well balanced, a handsome face, a wealth of blonde hair; easy, graceful action, a good voice, a command of good English, are all taking.

Altogether, the "welcome" meeting was a grand success.
